World's Biggest Bomber Passes Flight Test With 'Top Honors'

By RONALD W. WAGONER
(UP Staff Correspondent)

MARCH FIELD, Cal.—The first test flight of the massive Douglas B-19 bomber, the world's largest airplane, was a success in all details and today the army began 60 days of further experiments to determine whether others of its type will be built.

Maj. Stanley Umstead, test pilot who flew the plane on its first flight yesterday from Clover Field, adjoining the Douglas plant in Santa Monica, to the army air base here, said the plane handled "perfectly."

"It's initial hop was successful in all phases," he said. "She flew like a kite. We had her under control at all times and she was no more trouble to fly than an ordinary transport."

Exhaustive tests for speed climb, engine power, gasoline consumption, weight, and lifting capacity will be completed before the bomber is flown to Wright Field, Ohio, for additional tests. The plane will remain the property of Douglas Aircraft company for 60 days before the war department in Washington decides whether to accept it.

Practicability of such a gigantic craft as a military implement, either a bomber or troop-transport, is the question to be decided.

In its 57-minute initial flight the bomber was stripped of its armament—small cannon and machine guns—to reduce the weight on the critical flight. The armament will be mounted today for the further tests.

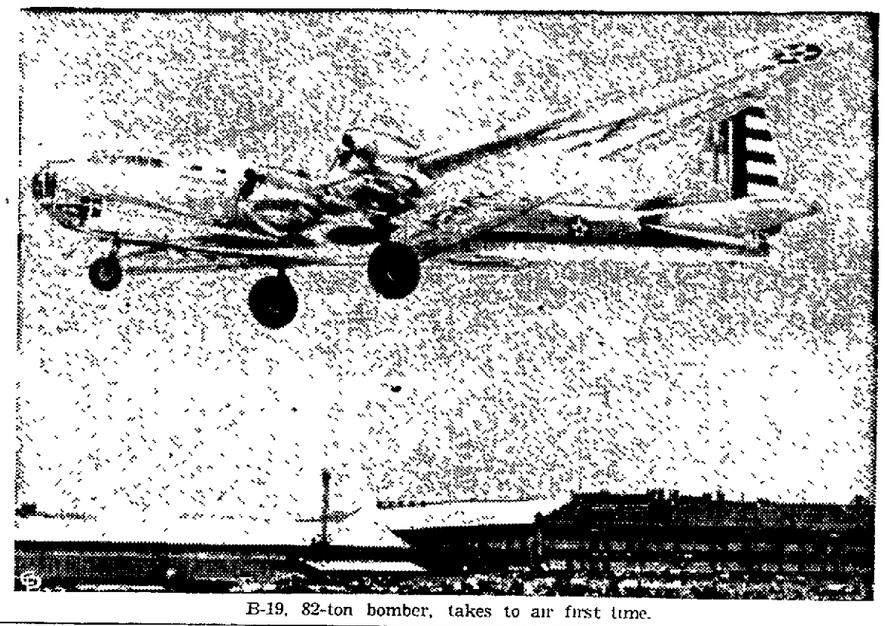
To army pilots the most valuable result of the test flight was the plane's ability to take off and land within 2,000, a distance only slightly more than that required for ordinary commercial transport planes.

During the test flight, however, the plane, relieved of its armament and carrying a crew of seven instead of the normal complement of 10, weighed only 50 tons. Fully loaded with its 28 tons of bombs or the 125-fully equipped soldiers it could carry, it would weigh from 80 to 82 tons.

Army officers believed, however, that even with a full load the plane would be able to land and take off from most of the nation's major airports. Such ability, they said, would vastly increase its value to the army.

The test flight was made at 160 miles an hour, 50 miles an hour less than the plane's maximum cruising speed. With its 11,000 gallon fuel capacity, the B-19 has a range of 7,000 miles enough to fly non-stop across the Atlantic and return It is powered by four 2,000 horsepower motors, has a wing spread of 212 feet and a 42-foot high tail assembly.

The air giant cost $3,000,000 to build although if produced on a mass basis the per plane cost would be considerably reduced.



B-19, 82-ton bomber, takes to air first time.

Say Nazi Tanks Routed, German Drives Blocked

Important Battle Rages as Reds Use Blitz Thrust Against Main Body Of Hitler Army Driving East Through Poland.

(By United Press)

The Soviet Union today reported that a lightning counter-thrust by the Red army had routed German tank units on the vital central front protecting the road to Minsk and Moscow.

German drives on the southern and northern flanks also were reported blocked as fierce fighting raged on many sectors, especially in the region of Lwow where the Communists said they were still blocking the Nazi offensive toward Kiev and the rich Ukraine.

Soviet tanks, artillery and airplanes joined the counter-attack on the main German forces driving from Poland toward or beyond the pre-war Russian frontiers in the Minsk area. They reported that they had routed both the enemy tank units and the 39th tank headquarters, taking prisoners and booty.

The outcome of this extremely important battle of tanks and dive-bombers was not yet decided, but the Russian communique indicated that the red army had at least broken up one phase of the German attack by using blitz methods in a counter-attack.

If the Russians can continue to use their own blitz thrusts against the German spearheads, the Nazi high command's objective of cutting up and destroying the Red army as a fighting force will be far more difficult than previously indicated by Berlin dispatches. The Germans, however, presumably were prepared to throw unlimited forces into the attack if a break-through appears possible and the outcome was not definitely indicated by communiques of either side.

The Germans continued to express confidence that the Red army must soon crack under the hammer blows of the Luftwaffe and Panzer divisions, and the high command promised officially that a report on "our great successes" would be made in a special communique on Sunday.

But Moscow dispatches said that:

The Red army repulsed German attempts to outflank Lwow, cavalry destroying Sixth infantry regiment that attempted to force the Pruth river while defense lines held firm all along the southern front to the Black Sea.

Russian airplanes blasted a German attempt to turn the Red army north flank by landing sea-borne troops on the Baltic coast, probably in Estonia, scoring two direct hits on German ships and "successfully" engaging the convoy's aerial escort.

(Nazi parachute troops were reported by London to have been used in the north flanking drive and an offensive from Finnish territory against Leningrad was expected in an effort to disorganize the Russian north lines, but so far the Red army has firmly held its ground.)

Russian tanks and infantry, aided by airplanes, inflicted heavy casualties on the German forces that smashed through Lituania and drove at least 120 miles from north Poland to the Baranovichi area, facing the big communications center of Minsk.

Moscow reported furious fighting on the central front in defense of Minsk, where the Red army apparently had fallen back to its main defense lines, and in the Luck sector, further south on the central front.

There was still no decisive trend of battle on the basis of incomplete reports on military operations made public by both the Germans and the Russians. The Nazi offensive definitely had stabbed deeply into the Polish and Baltic

Senate Votes Dollar Devaluation Today

PASSAGE SEEN DESPITE TILT

Both Branches of Congress Join to Act on Giant Appropriation Bills.

(By International News Service)

WASHINGTON—The senate votes today on a two-year extension of President Roosevelt's power to devalue the dollar and the $2,000,000,000 stabilization fund, as both branches of congress joined to rush action on appropriation bills totalling $15,000,000,000

A determined fight, led by Sens. Adams (D., Col.) and Taft (R., O.) was waged to kill devaluation authority with virtually no opposition being voiced to continuing the gold stabilization fund, designed for use in protecting the American dollar in world money markets.

Adams proposed an amendment killing devaluation authority. The senate agreed to vote on the proposal soon after convening today.

Assured by Secretary of the Treasury Morgenthau that the president has no present intention of using the authority to slice nine cents off the gold content of the dollar, administration leaders expected to put the bill through the senate unchanged.

Speedy action on appropriation bills brightened hopes of congressional leaders of completing action on bills before the new fiscal year begins on July 1. Appropriations of the first six months of the present session are expected to total $35 000 000 000.

After the senate passed the record-breaking peace time army supply bill, totalling $10,384,821,624 a speedy agreement was reached in conference on differences between senate and house.

The conferees eliminated anti-strike amendments written into the bill in the house after a spirited fight, and granted Gen. George C. Marshall, chief of staff, a $25,000,000 revolving fund to spend as he sees fit. Sen. Thomas (D., Okla.) in charge of the bill, said a precedent was established

Commissioners Buy Flag Pole for Courthouse Lawn

Richland county commissioners had joined the nation-wide patriotic campaign today and ordered a flag pole erected at the northwest corner of the courthouse lawn in time to display a flag for the Fourth of July.

The pole will be 55 feet high and of steel construction. It will be four and a half inches in diameter at the base and will taper to two inches at the top.

It will be erected by the Mansfield Structural and Erecting company at a cost of $100. The firm is expected to begin work on the job early next week so it will be completed by the Friday holiday.

The flag pole will replace a big metal electrically-lighted flag which was removed from the front of the courthouse about two years ago.

The county had to let the lights in the metal flag go out after a state examiner told commissioners, they could not appropriate county money for lighting it.

Sabotage, Espionage Discussed As Police Officers Meet Here

Measures to combat sabotage and espionage in the Mansfield area were outlined to approximately 100 law enforcement officers from Richland and seven surrounding counties yesterday in a special federal bureau of investigation defense conference in Grotto hall.

Police Chief Meade K. Bates, who welcomed the police to the city, said today that although this district is not faced with any direct attempt at sabotage or espionage that the federal men gave instructions to the enforcement officers and urged them to develop cooperation with residents in their counties.

Most important item stressed was the need for aid by civilians to give "tips" on activity in their neighborhoods. Although the officers may handle the situation easily enough, Bates said that the FBI agents pointed out that hundreds of civilian "listening posts" would be needed to give complete coverage of their area.

Lee V. Boardman, agent-in-charge of FBI work in Ohio's 40 northern counties, directed the defense meeting, giving a short talk on the policy of the federal department in handling subversive activities.

Boardman and other agents spoke following an address by

The only exception to the general easing of deferments applied to men who married after their registration date and cannot prove that they did so "in a manner consistent with the ordinary cause of human affairs" rather than to dodge possible military training.

TWO KILLED IN TRAIN WRECKS

Locomotive Jumps Track Near Niles; Four Cars Leave Rails In Massillon.

(By Associated Press)

Two Pennsylvania railroad trains were wrecked in Ohio today.

Two enginemen died as their locomotive jumped the track near Niles, landing on its side, half-buried in the right-of-way, with 14 loaded freight cars piled up behind it.

Four coaches of the Manhattan Limited, running from New York to Chicago, derailed within Massillon's city limits, but no one was seriously injured. Two women were slightly hurt.

Engineer G. E. Brown and Fireman K. E. Forester, both of Wheatland, Pa., were killed in the Niles wreck, which tore up nearly 1,000 feet of track on the Alliance division of the Pennsylvania.

The train was bound from Canton, to Wheatland, and carried a valuable shipment of pig tin as well as other goods. Railroad officials declined to comment on reports that yellow-hued tubes, which burst from boxes in one car, were for shell-making, and said they had no idea what caused the wreck.

This derailment occurred between 3 and 3:30 a. m., on a curve about 2½ miles south of Niles. The head brakeman, riding on the tank cabin of the locomotive, suffered head and leg injuries. Engineer Brown's body was pried out of the wreckage within a half hour, but Fireman Forester's body remained pinned under the

BREAK DUE AS HEAT HITS 93

Thunderstorms Forecast For Sunday; Weather Blamed For 5 Deaths In Ohio.

The heat wave which sent the mercury to a season's high of 93 degrees in Mansfield yesterday was making a last-ditch stand today, the weatherman said.

Scattered thundershowers are expected to rout the heat in northern Ohio tonight and throughout the state by Sunday night, according to the forecasters. Sunday will be mostly cloudy with local showers.

Five deaths were attributed to the heat in Ohio today and a number of heat prostrations were reported throughout the state. Twelve persons were overcome while attending the Cleveland-Chicago baseball game last night in Cleveland stadium.

Four persons drowned yesterday while seeking relief from the heat They included James G. Bradley, jr., 23, who drowned in Diehl lake at Youngstown; Louis Wickline, 23-year-old evangelist who succumbed in a farm pond near Bellefontaine; Rushford Morrison, 17, while swimming in a creek near West Union, and Robert Williams, 11, in the Miami river at Dayton.

The nine-day-old heat wave set records for the season at most Ohio points yesterday Highest reading reported was 99 at Fremont. It was 97 at Ottawa, 96 in Youngstown, and 95 in Cincinnati.

Mansfielders spent another uncomfortable night when the mercury failed to drop below 69 degrees last night. There was a cool breeze at higher altitudes in the city, but the weather was stifling during the night in the downtown area where the breeze was not felt.

It was 88 in Mansfield at noon today, one degree lower than the noon reading yesterday, indicating that the mercury would go above 90 again today unless showers arrive.

WORK LAGS

Washington Reports Ravenna Job Behind Schedule.

WASHINGTON—(U.P.)—Defense officials said today that the big shell loading plant near Ravenna was one of several munitions factories which are lagging behind construction schedule.

War department records showed that construction at the Ravenna project was 20 per cent behind the original schedule.

A lagging construction schedule of munitions plants was revealed as defense officials said they anticipated a further slump in war plane production in the next three months because of a shortage of vital materials and machine tools.

RAIDS: R. A. F. Blasts Power Station and Port of Bremen

(By International News Service)

LONDON—RAF squadrons dropped tons of high explosives today on a power station at Comines near Lille in German occupied France and carried out a new daylight sweep of the invasion coast line.

Authorities in London termed the attack on the power station "successful." It was launched only a few hours after British bombers hammered the great German port of Bremen and other targets for the 17th consecutive night of assaults on the channel coast and northwestern Germany.

The air ministry revealed, however, that the latest British raids yesterday and last night were conducted at the cost of at least 22 British planes. Twelve bombers were reported missing after the night attacks and 10 fighters were lost yesterday and last night.

During the night, officials said, British planes powerfully attacked the German port and naval base at Bremen and also pummeled shipyards and industrial objectives at Vegesak. Twelve British bombers were lost.

The air ministry said large fires were started at Bremer and Vegesak and that other targets were hit and set on fire at Emden, Wilhelmshaven, Cuxhaven, Oldenburg and Denhelder. Docks at Calais and Dunkirk were bombed.

Pressing forward with the almost incessant explosive pounding that British planes have given the channel area for more than two weeks, many scores of R. A. F. planes roared across the channel this morning.

Some of the planes were believed to be striking deep inland at Germany military objectives.

For a time the dull thuds of ESCAPE: Gamelin, Awaiting Court Martial, Flees Prison

(By International News Service)

BERLIN—Gen. Maurice Gamelin, former commander in chief of the French army, has escaped from the prison at Bourrase where he was awaiting trial at a court martial, the German radio disclosed today in a dispatch from Vichy.

A nation-wide search has been organized for Gamelin, said the German radio. There were no immediate details of the manner by which General Gamelin made his escape.

Two persons have been arrested, according to the German radio, at Clermont-Ferrand on a suspicion of having conspired to make the escape possible.

General Gamelin and other leaders of the French government which declared war on Germany were being held for trial by a court martial at Riom which was attempting to fix the responsibility for France's collapse in the war.

After the war began, General Gamelin also was commander in chief of all the Allied armies in France, including the British.

Other leading personalities including former Premiers Edouard Daladier, Paul Reynaud and Leon Blum and former War Minister Georges Mandel were arrested along with Gamelin.

They were all at first confined in Chaetau Chazeron and later removed to the prison at Bourraso.

HOLLYWOOD

—By Robbin Coons

HOLLYWOOD—He was a slender blond chap, quiet and introspective, and he sat at a lunch counter eating doughnuts and coffee and pondering the fateful circumstance that if he had ten bucks—or even a decent suit to wear so he could take a show date—he wouldn't have to leave college.

He didn't have the ten bucks, and he didn't have the decent suit. Northwestern university, therefore, doesn't number Edgar Bergen among its alumni. Northwestern, it is true, is making amends. Bergen is named for an honorary Master of Arts degree this summer—thus putting him on a level approaching Charlie McCarthy, who likewise failed to graduate but was consoled with a degree as "Master of Snappy Comeback and Innuendo."

ROBBIN COONS

Charley was Bergen's first puppet-love and chief support in college, but people didn't appreciate Charley as they do now. Bergen had to give up his plans for medicine—too long a course and too expensive—and concentrate on speech and dramatics. And then, lacking that ten bucks, he had to give up everything and settle down to show business.

He's never forgotten it. That's obvious when you consider Bergen's two pet philanthropies today. He doesn't call them that, and he shies from the word "charity."

Whatever you call it, the Bergen airport newly completed near Whittier is carrying on a course in instrument flying. Lasts six weeks and costs money—but the boys who can't make the financial grade get their chance to work out the tuition, or borrow it. So far the school has turned out 27 fliers—some of them helping get bombers to England, some in the army, some flying the commercial airlines.

The other project, more than a year under way, is for student nurses. Bergen is putting between $10,000 and $15,000 a year into his foundation, expects to build it to $50,000. That all stems from medical school, and some of the girls Bergen knew around the hospitals—hardworking youngsters who couldn't afford the training, often had to drop out midway to earn money to carry on. The foundation's object is to see that some of those girls don't have to "drop out"—when they've finished the course and joined the profession they repay the foundation to help other aspirants.

"A rich man's son," in Bergen's philosophy, "has three strikes against him at the start. Nothing to work for. People feel better when they've earned what they want. They feel they've made good on their own, and it's a great feeling."

PLANE OUTPUT IN 'DOLDRUMS'

Shortage of Materials Slows Production Outlook For July and August.

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON—Production of military aircraft for the United States and Britain was described authoritatively today as "in the doldrums" and destined to stay there through July and August primarily because of shortages of essential materials.

The low level of output of all types of combat craft, a defense official said, will be reflected in production figures for June which should be made public in about two weeks. A report issued early this month showed the May output was down to 1,334 planes of all types, including trainers, as compared with April production of 1,389.

Several contributing causes were given by an authority in close touch with the program. Among them was the fact that various new models recently were turned out and these had to undergo tests and have various weaknesses remedied before quantity production could be started.

But the principal cause of the slump, it was said, was a shortage of aluminum, magnesium and, to some extent, machine tools. New facilities for increasing the supply of these materials are scheduled to go into production in September and a substantial increase in plane output is due soon thereafter, probably in October.

CONN'S MOTHER DIES IN HOME

PRIZE RING EARNINGS BOUGHT

PITTSBURGH —(INS)— The months of suffering, and the joy that came with her illness as her son reached the peaks of boxing fame, were ended today for Mrs. Margaret McFarland Conn, 41.

The mother of Billy Conn, the broth of an Irish lad who almost won the heavyweight championship from Joe Louis ten days ago, died from a lingering and incurable malady last night.

Mrs. Conn was the mother of five children—Billy, 23; Mary Jane, 20, Jack, 19, Peggy Ann, 11, all at home, and Frank, 22, in the army at Indiantown Gap, Pa.

Funeral arrangements had not been completed, but requiem mass was to be held in Sacred Heart church, where as Margaret McFarland, only a few years from her native village of Milan Cumberland in England, she married William Conn. It was in Sacred Heart church, too, that all the Conn children were baptized, attended mass and went through the parish schools.

Death came in the Fifth avenue home which Billy's early prize ring earnings provided—one of the things included in the young fighter's resolve to "give Mom everything she needs."

But Billy, who a few days ago flew home from New York in a similar emergency, was not at Mrs. Conn's side when the end came. He was reported to be somewhere in the east, enroute home after refereeing a fight in Baltimore.

Tuesday, Mrs. Conn had suffered a relapse. Billy, who had just signed a $25,000 movie contract, rushed to Pittsburgh by plane. But Mrs. Conn rallied, and Billy throught it safe to keep his eastern engagement.

More than 1,500 persons will enjoy family reunions and picnics in Mansfield parks during the coming week, according to Frank R. Burton, superintendent of parks.

Burton said that he had already received 20 requests so far for reservations for facilities at the parks. The superintendent said that families from as far away as Detroit, Columbus and Cleveland planned to hold outings here.

The majority of requests, however, according to Burton, were from farmers from this vicinity planning family reunions and city organizations holding annual picnics. The average attendance at each outing was estimated at about 75 persons.

Employes in the county engineer's office who have to answer most of the inquiries about the courthouse elevator decided to do something today about teaching passengers how to operate the elevator. They were preparing a chart of instructions showing what buttons to push in the elevator to reach offices in the building. The chart will be placed at the elevator entrance on the basement floor. Because the engineer's office is nearest the elevator shaft in the basement, would-be passengers go there to ask how to operate the car. Frequently an employe in the office takes aged persons to the floors they want to reach.

There's going to be a party this afternoon with ice cream and cake and all the trimmings. The Brickers stopped off here on their way to Boston.

Visitors in the office of Municipal Court Clerk Ralph Hughes were surprised and somewhat startled today to see the office's favorite fern suddenly covered with blossoms. Hughes explained that the plant had "bloomed" overnight. One of the unusual things about the blossoms were that some resembled hollyhocks while others were suspiciously like roses. What Hughes didn't explain to the visitors was that he had merely placed blossoms from his own garden upon the broad leaves of the plant.

PROMOTIONS GRANTED TO YOUNGER MEN

Change Marks Radical Move Away From Former System Of Seniority.

(By United Press)

WASHINGTON — The army, making a drastic change of policy, today placed the accent on youth—from top to bottom.

In two swift moves designated to rejuvenate its command, it asked congress for permission to oust unfit officers who "constitute a real danger to our national security" and promoted 286 lieutenant colonels to temporary colonels on the basis of performance.

(Among officers on the regular promotion list was Hugh Mitchell, S. C., of Galion, along with five other Ohioans.)

These moves followed by a month a request to congress for revision of the selective service act to reduce from 35 to 28 the maximum age limit of registrants subject to active military duty. Such legislation is now pending.

The entire program is aimed at fulfilling army effort to weld a vigorous, hard-hitting and mechanized force.

The request for broad powers to "purge" the ranks of unfit officers was made by Acting Secretary of War Robert P. Patterson in a letter to house speaker Sam Rayburn yesterday.

Patterson proposed that the army's cumbersome retirement machinery be overhauled completely and that the secretary of war be empowered to remove any officer—from a second lieutenant to a general—whose retention could not be justified for "good and sufficient reasons."

Removal would be recommended by a special board of five general officers convened by the secretary. Its decision would be final.

Sen. Elbert D. Thomas, D., Utah, promptly introduced legislation to translate the request into action. A similar measure is expected to be introduced in the house.

Patterson's request to oust officers who are "unable to stand up under the strain to which they must be subjected if we are to build up a modern army capable of meeting the present demands of modern combat" is aimed especially at commanders of field units.

It fits into the recently enunciated policy of Gen. George C. Marshall, chief of staff, that every effort must be made to get youth, vigor and ability into this phase, while "brains and experience" of older officers can be used in other less rigorous physical jobs.

The first concrete move to carry out this policy was the announcement that 286 lieutenant colonels have been promoted to temporary colonels. This "promotion by performance" marked a radical departure from the traditional policy of elevation officers on the basis of seniority.

And it was just the beginning.

A total of 800 such promotions are expected by next Jan. 1—with merit playing an increasingly greater part in future promotion lists. The first promotions were based chiefly on performance over the past 10 years. Future lists will be based increasingly on performance since last July. The final list probably will be based entirely upon performance during the emergency.

The war department said the "time has come when rank and responsibility should be recognized."

BUC Prepares to Send $269,000 to 6,000 Ohio Miners

COLUMBUS —(U.P.)— The Ohio bureau of unemployment compensation today prepared to issue checks totaling $269,811 to 6,145 Ohio coal miners for the six weeks they remained idle during a wage dispute in 1939.

Payment of the claims was made possible by a state supreme court refusal to renew a temporary injunction that restrained the BUC from paying the benefits.

Administrator H. C. Atkinson said checks would be mailed "as soon as they are completed."

Checks will be given to miner-claimants in 17 areas, including:

Bridgeport, 3,088 claims, $132,865; Cambridge, 221, $5,937; Canton, 17, $741; Coshocton, 1, $14; Dayton, 1, $36; Elyria, 1, $40; Findlay, 1, $90; Logan, 954, $41,992; Marietta, 1, $13; Newark, 1, $27; Zanesville, 4, $77, and interstate claimants, 12, $423.

RUSSIANS OPEN COUNTER-DRIVE AGAINST NAZIS

Claim Tanks Routes, Germans Blocked In Both North And South Sectors.

territory protecting the pre-war frontiers of Soviet Russia, and in the Minsk sector maybe inside the Soviet border.

But the distance advanced is secondary in this conflict, unless it proves too great for the Germans to maintain their communications lines, which is not likely. The important thing is whether the Germans can overwhelm, trap and destroy the Red army as a fighting force.

The main Nazi attempt to win the war in the east has been a drive toward Minsk and in the direction of Moscow and the immediate question on that vital front appeared to be whether the Red army could stand its ground on the main defense line to which it was retired. This is the so-called Stalin line, built in recent years for fighting in depth against just the kind of attack now being pressed by the Germans.

If the Russians prove that by employing blitzkrieg counter-measures they can hold off and then smash up the German spearhead the Nazi offensive will be in danger everywhere. But most foreign military experts have contended that only continued withdrawal, counter-attack and withdrawal can the Russians avoid destruction at the hands of the vast army Hitler is ready to fling against any break in the enemy line.

A German break-through in great force in the Minsk sector would not only open the road toward Moscow (the heart of Russian military communications and control) but would permit the Nazis to flow through as they did in France and flank the north and south Russian positions.

Military dispatches and communiques from both sides so far have failed to show definitely whether the Red army plans to throw its full weight against the German offensive on the Stalin line or whether it will give ground in order to avoid the danger of a fatal break through. The outcome of the scattered but fierce tank and infantry battles now being fought, and the success of the Russians in maintaining their air force in strong operation, probably will decide the question.

The Russians have repeatedly stated, for instance, that they are dealing quickly and successfully with the dangerous Nazi parachute weapons as well as Fifth columnists who in the past have been of vital importance to German strategy of chaos.

The Germans, however, reported that they had succeeded in establishing complete air control over the fighting front and had broken up Russian communications until many large Red units were isolated. If true, that would support the Nazi claims of an impending crack up on the eastern front.

On the western front, the British air force continued bombarding Germany and German-occupied zones both by day and night. The 17th night attack on the German war industries centered at Bremen and Vegesack, where shipyards were the chief target.

In addition, Royal Air Force planes in hugh numbers renewed daylight bombardment of German bases in France and kept pounding away with steady relays of planes which reported they encountered decreasing opposition.

German Troops On March Across Norway

LONDON — (AP) — German troops from Norway are marching across northern Finland to attack the Soviet arctic port of Murmansk, Reuters, British news agency, said in a dispatch from Stockholm today. The dispatch quoted Swedish press reports from Berlin.

It was reported from Helsinki that Finnish artillery had begun a bombardment of Soviet defenses at Hanko, important naval base guarding the entrance to the Gulf of Finland. The Russians considered it vital to the defense of Leningrad, which lies at the head of the gulf.

Report Russian Cruiser Sunk

BERLIN — (INS) — The official German radio, in a dispatch from Bucharest, said today that the Rumanian army had announced sinking of the 2,895-ton Russian torpedo cruiser, Moskwa, off the Black Sea port Constanza.

(Jane's, authoritative manual of the world's naval vessels, lists the Moskwa as a "French-type" destroyer of the Leningrad class.)

Admiralty Reports Prison Ship Caught

LONDON—(U.P.)—The admiralty announced today that a German prison and supply ship had been intercepted by the British navy, and that "a number" of British merchant seamen held as prisoners aboard a German raider were killed when the cruiser Cornwall sank the raider in the Indian ocean last month.

The prison ship intercepted was the 3,063-ton Alstertor of Hamburg.

In its communique the admiralty said that 78 merchant seamen held prisoner in the Alstertor had been rescued.

"It is now known that the German raider sunk in the Indian ocean by His Majesty's Ship Cornwall, as announced May 9, had aboard a large number of mines," the communique continued. "During the action with the raider these were detonated and it is regretted that a number of British merchant seamen aboard the raider as prisoners lost their lives in the resulting explosion."

The Alstertor had served both as a prison ship and a supply ship.

Sabotage, Espionage Discussed As Police Officers Meet Here

Judge C. H. Houston of the Richland county common pleas court.

Emphasized by Boardman was the penalty for sabotage of necessary defense articles or materials needed to produce them. The chief agent said that a recent law passed by congress provides for penalties ranging from a few years imprisonment to the death penalty.

Boardman named several instances of sabotage from putting acid on thousands of shoe strings to placing bombs in giant bombing planes. He advised the local enforcement officers to make a study of their own community and to enlist the aid of FBI agents at the first sign of any subversive activities.

The chief agent explained that local officers would act as sort of a "clearing house" for federal agents, weeding out the complaints through personal grievances or arguments.

Special Agent Clyde Smith gave a short talk on the defense against incendiary bombs and a motion picture, "War and Order," which showed the work of metropolitan police in London combatting Nazi incendiary bombs and caring for the civilian population.

Bates said that the FBI had originally planned to hold the defense conferences secretly. Because the news of one leaked out, however, and the number of "tips" increased, Bates said that the federal department decided to give the conferences a great deal of publicity in order to enlist the aid of more civilians.

Hungarian Planes Bomb Russia

BUDAPEST —(INS)— Hungarian and Soviet forces were locked in battle today and Hungarian planes bombed Russian objectives following this country's declaration of war against the USSR.

The first Hungarian communique said Hungarian planes retaliated for Russian air raids by bombing several unspecified Russian towns, causing numerous fires. All the planes returned safely to their bases.

Soviet planes several times yesterday and last night tried to raid Hungarian centers but were driven off, the communique stated.

Ground forces were fighting along the Carpatho-Ukraine frontier. At several points, it was claimed, Hungarian forces inflicted heavy damage in artillery bombardments of the Russian lines.

The heaviest fighting was reported at Voloc Tornya, near the extreme northern end of the Hungarian frontier.

Free French Take Syrian Town

Other free French units were said to have reached a point three miles south of Nabak.

Nazis Assert 36 Planes Bagged

DEVALUATION BEFORE SENATE

Passage Expected In Spite of Determined Fight. By Opposition.

when President McKinley was given a blanket fund of $50,000,000 during the Spanish-American war.

While Thomas the army supply bill was the biggest single appropriation bill in history, house appropriation committee records showed that it was exceeded during the World war, when one bill carried a total of $12,080,000,000.

A joint senate-house conference was called to agree upon differences between the two bodies in the annual relief bill. Final action was expected on the labor-social security supply bill.

The senate banking committee was called into session to act on the house bill extending life of the commodity credit corporation and allowing it $1,250,000,000 additional to finance 85 per cent of parity loans on wheat, cotton, corn, rice and tobacco.

Both senate and house were in unusual Saturday sessions today, but leaders hoped to avoid night sessions in cleaning up a heavy calendar of "must" bills by Monday night.

TWO KILLED IN TRAIN WRECKS

stoker several hours after the derailment.

Two women injured in the Massillon wreck, which occurred shortly after 6:15 a. m., were taken to City hospital there, and attendants said neither was seriously hurt. Both Mrs. Frances Dogostina, 35, of Milwaukee, Wis., and Mrs. Rose Wolman, 46, of the Bronx, New York, were shaken up but suffered no broken bones, the hospital reported.

Four cars of the Manhattan Limited were derailed at Massillon but police said the only injury reported to them was an ankle fracture suffered by a women passenger. This wreck occurred shortly before 7 a. m.

The train was proceeding at a comparatively slow rate of speed, since it had just made a stop at the Massillon station, and the accident occurred less than a mile from the depot.

Police said braking aparatus on one of the cars — the third back of the doubleheader locomotives—apparently fell to ties to cause the derailment of two express cars and two day coaches of the 15-car train. All the derailed cars remained upright.

Five hundred feet of track were torn up, and automobile traffic was stopped at the Cherry road crossing.

Traffic on both the east and west main lines of the Pennsylvania was halted by the wreck, and railroad officials immediately began re-routing trains over branches. They said traffic on the eastbound line would be restored shortly, but the westbound tracks could not be cleared and repaired until late today.

Mrs. Louis Lamoreux, chairman of the camp committee, reported on the progress of camping plans and mentioned that shelter tents had been obtained for troops wishing to remain at camp overnight.

The camp staff will meet Friday at Scout headquarters at 2 p. m. for the first of three meetings before camp starts, to formulate plans for the season.

CLOSE CASE AS MURDER-SUICIDE

Body of Husband Found In Pit Where Wife's Remains Were Discovered.

(By Associated Press)

LANCASTER — Sheriff Dudley Crider today closed his investigation into the slaying of Mrs. Grace Wilson, 50, after the body of her husband was taken from the same water-filled gravel pit in which Mrs. Wilson was found June 14.

Crider said he was "satisfied" that Mrs. Wilson's husband, Grover, 56-year-old prominent Fairfield county farmer, had driven his automobile into the quarry pond. The body and submerged machine were discovered at the bottom of the pit yesterday.

Although still waiting a verdict by Coroner Jess Dupler, the sheriff said that as far as he was concerned the case was closed—"a murder-suicide."

Wilson had been missing since shortly before the body of his wife was found in the quarry on the family farm near here. Dupler ruled in a verdict then that the woman died of "suffocation by strangulation" before being placed in the water.

After a nation-wide search failed to locate Wilson, Crider said he might have the pit drained in an attempt to find new evidence in the case. The man and his wife had been separated about a month before the woman died and were living apart," Crider said.

Two swimmers, David Thimmes and Carl Shaeffer, discovered Wilson and the auto about 15 feet from the spot where the woman's body was discovered.

CITY STREET OILING HALTED

Supply of Material Runs Out, Delay Because of Defense Program Looms.

Mansfield's street oiling program, although in its closing stages, came to an abrupt halt today when the Mansfield Asphalt Paving company ran out of oil.

Carl H. Stander, president of the company, said that a new shipment was expected Monday. He explained that priority given to defense materials had made it difficult to obtain transportation for other materials and that a slight delay had been caused.

Stander said that he believed that oiling program was nearing completion, however. Workers oiled streets in the southeastern part of the city yesterday until their oil supply was gone.

Stander also announced that his company would begin applying surfacing to Bowman and Dorian streets and Walter and Rhein avenues late next week. Work is being completed on the concrete foundation and curb setting on Rhein avenue. Foundations have already been laid on the other three streets.

Asphalt surfacing will be spead on Bowman, Dorian and Walter next week and on Rhein after it has cured sufficiently. Stander said that he wished to get started on the improvement on Sturges avenue from Cline to Lexington avenues but that the city still had to obtain the deeds for needed right-of-way from the Cities Service Oil company.

MANSFIELD, OHIO, SATURDAY, JUNE 28, 1941.

Drive carefully tomorrow—do what you can to confound those statisticians who know by Wednesday how many people will be killed and hurt in traffic accidents the following week-end.

Substitutes Beat the Originals

YOU may never have been conscious of the fact that a great many of the metal parts in your refrigerator, your electric range or your washing machine were aluminum.

If you happen to have one of the very latest models of those appliances, they probably aren't. But the chances are you wouldn't know the difference.

At least, the word of A. W. Robertson, chairman of the board of Westinghouse ought to be entirely acceptable proof that the use of substitute materials for aluminum hasn't injured the efficiency of the appliances a bit.

The switch has an even deeper significance, however. In eliminating aluminum from the manufacture of those items, the Mansfield Westinghouse plant alone has freed enough of that precious metal, Robertson points out, to build 130 two-engine army bombers. That's a million and a half pounds of aluminum.

Through the ingenuity of engineers, alternate materials have been developed to permit the saving of 150,000 pounds of metal and 100,000 pounds of zinc, both badly needed in defense work and, as a matter of fact, now placed on the government priority list.

It is worthy of note that engineers didn't throw their hands in the air and give up when they found they couldn't have aluminum, nickel and zinc to produce their ranges, refrigerators and washers.

They developed other materials—and made them work. They made them work so well, in fact, that in some cases they do better work than the original materials.

So purchasers get better devices and the government gets its needed metals.

Necessity may be the mother of invention, but here it kills two birds with one stone, if you don't mind scrambled proverbs.

A Talking Nation

THE people of the United States seem to have taken telephone advertising at its word. They are doing a lot of long-distance talking. Last Christmas a record was set in a number of big cities when a special holiday rate, combined with the holiday spirit and more jobs, induced a great many people to call up family and friends. But that was only an indication of the times. On May 28, an ordinary business day, the record set at Christmas was so far surpassed that it hardly seemed worth recalling.

Who's doing all the talking, and what is it all about?

Part of it is connected with the government and defense. There are 45 per cent more calls in and out of Washington now than a year ago. Although there has been a sharp drop in calls to Europe, the difference is more than made up by calls to Latin-America and the Far East. And open terminals in London, Madrid and Berne are even retrieving some of the lost volume of calls to Europe.

Part of it, too, must follow the greater familiarity of the public with the telephone, so that people use it more for personal and social matters which formerly would have been either neglected or taken care of by mail.

Supporting Freedom

IT TURNS OUT that the "seizure" of the strikebound North American Aviation plant by the army wasn't such a blow to democracy as some alarmists said. The army walked in to protect property and workers. And that was all.

The plant wasn't "taken over" by the government. Management was not disturbed. Stockholder interests were not affected in any way. No strikers were drafted. Of the 12,000 strikers, all but ten went back to work. Three of that group had taken jobs in other places during the strike. The remaining seven were on the bargaining committee responsible for it.

It is well to be on the alert against menaces to democracy, but it is a good idea not to anticipate the worst every time an emergency situation is handled by an emergency method. Disorganization, inability to function, chaos and selfishness are greater perils to freedom and democracy than strength or prompt action taken to meet a special problem.

You Shut the Door

—By ELSIE ROBINSON

YOU can't believe it, even yet. You try not to think about it. Forget it in work or play. Or worse escapes, perhaps — booze, gambling, dope. But it's no good. Sooner or later the dreadful reality leaps upon you—

Your Life Has Fizzled Out.

Only yesterday, so it seems, the years stretched before you endlessly, filled with the promise of romance and adventure. And, as you watch an actor on a stage, so you saw yourself going triumphantly down that shining trail, young and eager, always seeking greater and wider crusades.

But has your dream come true? No! Instead, your life seems to have shrunk to a prison cell. Not a real cell, of course. No one can see the bars that hold you in or hear your desperate hammering against the dingy walls. But the bars are there—as real as though they were forged from steel—and you huddle in shadows as deep and dark as ever filled a death cell in Folsom or Sing Sing. Day after day life goes on like this. No new prospect calling.

How has it happened? You don't know. You didn't even know it was happening. Never did you wish that life would shrink like this, or plan for such tragic imprisonment. And always you hated those spineless spirits who let their lives come to nothing, through cowardly compromise or sluggish evasion.

Never— never —would YOU be like that! Better to kill oneself than live like THAT, smothered in one's own complacent stupidity. No matter what you had to face, YOU were going to keep life open, keep your own spirit free—ALWAYS.

And now, at 35, you realize that you've actually become one of them. 35? Why, you're still just a kid, you assure yourself. And yet—in a dreadful moment of honest analysis — you realize that you've lost interest in almost everything. Have grown sour and cynical and all shut in on yourself. Just go plugging along, day after day, in a deepening, dreary rut.

"But I can't be blamed for that," you say. "It isn't my fault if times are hard—if nothing new ever happens."

No, it isn't your fault if times are hard. But it most certainly IS your fault if nothing new ever happens, and you're "all shut in on yourself." Life was meant to be open. You were supposed to be out in circulation. And no matter how hard the times, you could still be out in circulation —life could still be open. But YOU, YOURSELF, CLOSED THE DOOR . . . LOCKED YOURSELF IN. And the reason's plain.

There was something in life you feared. Criticism, maybe. Or conflict, or competition, or perhaps it was monotony—solitude—hardship. Whatever it was, you couldn't take it. So you tried to get away from it. And found an escape. Buried yourself in work, perhaps, because you didn't know how to get along with other people. Or in play, because you didn't know how to get along WITHOUT them. Whichever it was, you found a way to get away from life.

And each time you did, Life became smaller, dimmer, sourer.

What's the reason for all these spoiled and wasted lives? That's the reason. They couldn't, wouldn't take it. Couldn't face the normal demands and handicaps of human existence. Found some way to avoid that particular phase of reality which was too much for them. And so walled themselves away into smaller and smaller cells.

We shudder at the thought of death. We long for perpetual youth. Yet we, ourselves, choose death — and turn our backs on youth.

Life doesn't make prisoners of us. We make prisoners of ourselves. Life doesn't run away from us. We run away from life.

No human can prevent the ageing of his flesh. But any human can stay young in spirit—if he'll pay the price. But that price means punishment. It means doing all the things that are toughest for you to do. Making changes, facing challenges, taking criticism, though your lazy, cowardly, conceited spirit shrinks from them all. Learning how to endure boredom and loneliness. Or pressure and haste. Learning to take life and ALL of life—AS IT COMES. Without getting choosey. Good and bad alike—hard and easy.

Let's Look Around

Through South Dakota Badlands

—By G. J. KOCHENDERFER

PIERRE, South Dakota — Here is another of those small state capitals, which owes its choice to central location and early selection, rather than to size.

It was in the vicinity of Pierre that the first white settlement in South Dakota was made in 1822 and this city of about 4,000 population was also the starting point of the old Deadwood trail, which played an important part in the early day history of this territory.

Not satisfied with being in the geographical center of its state, Pierre also displays a marker on which is inscribed the claim that it is "the approximate center of North America"—which is taking in considerable territory for so small a place.

It is Pierre's good fortune to have a capitol building that is relatively new, having been completed in 1910 and being attractively situated amid landscaped surroundings, with Capitol lake nearby. Although much smaller, the rotunda is remindful of Ohio's capitol in Columbus.

THE DRIVE from Rapid City here was made particularly interesting by that part of the trip which extended through the South Dakota Badlands, which constitute a vast area of 150,000 acres, now designated as a "national monument," probably for the reason that it lacks elements ordinarily attributed to a "park."

The Badlands, so named by the Indians because they found travel difficult in this territory, are regarded as Nature's masterpiece in soil erosion, and the effects—in coloring, fantastic shapes of pinnacles and depth of gullies—present an ever-changing scene of weird beauty along mile after mile of the road that extends from the town of Wall, on the west, almost to Kadoka, the east gateway to the Badlands.

Not only are the Badlands a favorite tourist attraction in this section, and readily accessible in a trip toward the Black Hills and Yellowstone park, but the fossil remains discovered in various layers of soil, clay, sand and rock which play a part in coloring and designing, have offered a rich field for scientific investigation of the types of life that existed on earth millions of years ago.

CLAY from the Black Hills, and also from the Badlands, has been found excellent for pottery making—with the supply unlimited—or, as one young man engaged in he industry said: "Well, maybe not unlimited, but enough for the next 50,000 years, or so."

And that should be long enough to supply all the need for material out of which Ivan Houser designs the artistic pieces of pottery for which he finds ready market in the little town of Keystone, which can't be missed on a trip from Rapid City to Mt. Rushmore.

Here is another of the instances in which a young man with a knack for doing one thing well, started in a small way to turn out personalized pottery, and now he is kept so profitably busy that greatly enlarged studios and kilns are required. What Ivan likes is to make the pottery — somebody else must attend to the selling—and he hates to waste time making the "common stuff," for which there is apparently some demand.

GREETINGS to the Leedys, the Garbers and the McClures of southern Richland county, from Mrs. John R. Brennan, of Rapid City, whose maiden name was Jennie Leedy and who was born near Bellville in 1861.

As a young woman Miss Leedy came to Rapid City from Richland county, several years after her father and four brothers had come here as trail blazers. Here she married Maj. John R. Brennan, one of the founders of Rapid City, who is said to have laid out the mile-square town "with a pocket compass."

Mrs. Brenan, at eighty, is still active in women's clubs, church and Y. W. C. A. affairs, and was recently privileged to crown her granddaughter, Miss Helen Hill, as queen of the Trail Blazers pageant.

She hasn't attended a family reunion in Richland county in the past 25 years, but would appreciate a letter from some of the Leedys, the Garbers, or the McClures in the relationship. She makes her home with her daughter, Mrs. F. Web Hill, and a letter addressed to Rapid City, S. D., will reach her.

This Is Ohio

In 1846, when Historian Henry Howe published his history of Ohio, he sought to have the four most influential men of the state indorse his work.

He selected two Whigs and two Democrats. They were Thomas Corwin of Lebanon, "the wagon boy," Judge Ebenezer Lane of Sandusky, Samuel Medary of Columbus, editor of the Ohio Statesman, called the "Old Wheel Horse of Democracy," and Gov. Reuben Wood of Cleveland, the "Tall Chief of the Cuyahogas."

Least known of the four was Judge Lane. He was among the most eminent legal men of Ohio. From 1843 until 1845, he was a supreme court judge. He resigned to develop railroads in the state.

Everyday Poem

—By GEORGE ELLISTON

No Need to Be Dull.

There is no need that any life
Be dull. Look what the mind
Can do; it can go anywhere,
New scenes, new pastimes find.

If you would travel, sail far seas.
A book can take you there,
And your imagination, these
Your passports anywhere.

New games to learn, new friends to make.
How can a life be dull
When there is so much here to make
Days gay and wonderful?

Summary of Week's Happenings

Hitler Sends Army to Market As He Tries Russian Invasion

—By ASSOCIATED PRESS

THE RICHEST, blackest soil on the earth has been nurturing in Russia's Ukraine the world's largest wheat crop. Last week-end that wheat stood about three feet high and still green. In a week or two it will be dry and golden.

Then the Russian peasants will be able to burn their fields to keep their crops from falling into enemy hands—if they still control their fields.

Beyond the Ukrainian farming region lies the great Baku oil area. It and other Russian fields yield more than three-quarters of Europe's production. Wells can be dynamited, if there is time.

Adolf Hitler showed how much he envied Russia's wealth five years ago when he said:

"If the Urals, with their immeasurable treasure of raw materials; Siberia, with its rich forests, and the Ukraine, with its limitless grain fields, were to lie in Germany, this country under National Socialist leadership would swim in plenty."

Invasion Ordered.

Last Sunday he said that to safeguard the world from the Bolshevik menace he had "decided to give the fate of the German people and the Reich and of Europe again into the hands of our soldiers."

Hitler did not mention the wheat crop in explaining why he was striking just then at an old enemy with which he had had a non-aggression pact since 1939.

In the attack, which Germany called "the greatest march the world has ever seen," she reportedly was using about 135 divisions while she set the Russian number at 160 divisions.

The Luftwaffe blasted Odessa and Leningrad; the Red air force reportedly replied with raids on Warsaw, Constanta (Rumania) and Helsinki.

Germany's Strategy

Reports had two main Nazi pincers movements in operation. Toward the Ukraine, columns were shooting down from Poland and up from Rumania. Toward Moscow, columns were driving over from Prussia and up from Poland.

The Russian terrain, a military man in Switzerland said, was suited perfectly for the German type of swift, slashing, encircling attack. Germans were helped in these tactics at the start by dry weather.

Russia's Defense.

Against such an attack the Russians had prepared their own tactics. An Italian general who served as an observer in Russia wrote of Red strategy a few years ago:

"The prevalence of almost limitless plains and the lack of any suitable strong points determine (the Red army's) dynamism and vast maneuvering which so perplex the mechanical ideas of the ordinary European commander."

A military observer in Washington opined that the Red high command's immediate problem was to keep the Red army in being regardless of the amount of territory it had to yield to Germany. He recalled that it has been the historic policy of Russian militarists to draw the enemy far into the interior.

A complication for the Germans was the fact that Russians shrewdly build all their railways on a wider gauge than Germany's.

Reactions and Somersaults.

For leaders of democratic countries who had grown accustomed to excoriating Nazism and Communism as twin evils, the fighting between Germans and Russians posed a delicate problem. Here's how some nations responded:

England.

Immediately, Prime Minister Churchill took the matter by the horns by giving a firm answer.

"No one has been a more consistent opponent of Communism than I have for the last 25 years," he said. "I will unsay no words I have spoken about it."

But, he added, "this is no class war." He said Hitler was trying to destroy Soviet power only so that he would be free to fling his army at Britain.

"Russia's danger is our danger, and the danger of the United States. Any man or state that fights against Hitler will have our aid," he said, and added that "any man or nation that fights with Hitler is our foe." This last apparently was intended for Finns, who later began shooting—along with Germans—at Russians.

The RAF, meanwhile, was unleashing stinging blows, by night on Germany proper and by daylight on the French "invasion" coast. Bombs were aimed particularly at plants producing synthetic oil. An American army air corps officer in England said the RAF had won "absolute supremacy" in the air over northern Europe.

The United States.

Though moving a bit more cautiously, the U. S. followed Britain's lead in insisting that the main thing was to beat Hitler even if it meant helping Russia.

The president said the U. S. would furnish Russia all the aid we possibly could. He did not specify, however, whether Russia would have to buy her material here or whether she would come under terms of the lease-lend law.

Japan.

Under the Tripartite pact of last Fall, Japan is pledged to help Germany or Italy if either is "attacked by a power at present not involved in the European war." Japan also had a friendship pact with Russia.

Obervers said exact wording of the clause on "attack" would determine Japan's position. The Nipponese newspaper Yomiuri headlined the fighting: "Germany Attacks Russia."

Turkey reportedly assured Russia that she would remain neutral despite her recent friendship pact with Germany.

Sweden disclosed that she was allowing a division of German troops to cross Sweden en route from Norway to Finland.

Man About Manhattan

—By GEORGE TUCKER

NEW YORK—A big American Airlines transport, her nose pointed to the east, was humming softly over the moon-painted cornfields of Indiana. She carried a crew of three and a full cargo of passengers. One of those passengers was Helen Hayes, the actress.

Captain Johnson, in command of the liner, strolled through the ship, nodding pleasantly to his guests. He told them they were about eight thousand feet. He told them the approximate speed they were making. Finally he paused beside Miss Hayes.

"Back to New York?" he asked.

"Yes," she replied, "I've got to go to Maplewood Maplewood, New Jersey. I'm acting in a play in Maplewood."

"This is a coincidence," suggested Captain Johnson "I live right near Maplewood. I know that theater well. You know I have trouble obtaining tickets to that theater. Sometimes you have to ask three weeks in advance."

They talked a little while, and the captain returned to his duties. But next day at the airport he found a note and a pair of complimentary tickets to the theater from Helen Hayes.

Department store vignette only it really took place in a nightclub: At a table were Bernard Gimbel, the merchant-sportsman, Gertrude Macy (who is Katharine Cornell's manager), Alfred Bloomingdale, and Grace Moore, the singer.

"Hmmmmm," said Miss Moore, "Gimbels, Macy's and Bloomingdale's—sounds like a department store convention."

There is a curious mural by Desha on display at one of the city's leading department stores—the result of an accident. While Desha was painting it her cat walked across it, leaving a trail of footprints in the wet paint. The effect was so striking she left them untouched. Today they are wondered at by many of the curious, who believe they were an imaginative fancy of the artist.

Our chip-off-the-old-block department today is dedicated to Vincent Passeri, who is manager of the New York Opera company. Though only 18 years old, his talent is easily explained. Vincent's father is Amedeo Passeri, famed opera maestro. Vincent is the youngest manager of an opera company in the world.

Many people earn livelihoods at odd jobs, and among these is a young Italian who owns five or six of the most photographed snakes on earth. He rents them to advertising companies. His favorite money-maker is a copperhead which he calls "Pete."

The big "draw" to street crowds currently is that captured German Messerschmitt plane on view on Broadway. People are around it ten deep. . . . It's an awe-inspiring sight, with its somber black crosses and its brooding guns.

You can always tell when you are in Little Italy by the bundles of uncured tobacco hanging from walls of the downtown shops. The tobacco is black, and, gathered in husks or bundles, makes an attractive and also decorative piece of merchandise.

The company also agreed to increase wages to "at least equal to the highest paid" by other companies, to pay time and a half for overtime and double time for Sundays and holidays, to lay off and rehire on a seniority basis and—to abolish the "service department," which the union always contended was composed of spies and strong-arm men.

Sea Tragedy

A Quarter-Mile Down.

One U. S. submarine brought from retirement and reconditioned recently was the pint-sized "pig boat" O-9 which had been laid up in the Philadelphia Navy Yard for 10 years. It weighed 480 tons and in tests had withstood only 250 feet of water depth.

In a test dive off Portsmouth, N. H., it plunged to the ocean bed 440 feet below the surface with 33 men. Two years ago many members of the crew of the Squalus were rescued when the Squalus sank at a nearby point; but it was in only 240 feet of water.

Naval men assumed that O-9's hull caved in even before it hit bottom. Oil and cork from the lining of the hull came to the surface. Salvage efforts were abandoned.

Abroad

Syria's Struggle.

British motorized columns clattered over Syrian desert roads scuffed out by plodding camels in ancient times, occupied Damascus, then pushed on for Beirut. To the north, another British column drove to Palmyra, astride a Mosul oil field pipeline.

More Free French and Empire troops recaptured Merdjayoun and moved on Beirut from the South.

The British acknowledged there was a "deal of scrapping" in the Beirut campaign, but they pushed on under orders by Gen. Sir Henry Maitland Wilson to "be guided by military considerations alone," and abandon earlier hopes of a "political" conquest.

As Berlin expressed amazement at the "gallant resistance" put up by the French in Syria, informed Vichy sources reported the Turks, freed for the moment from Nazi pressure, were massing troops on the Turko-Syrian frontier.

GIRL CYCLIST DIES IN CRASH AT MT. GILEAD

Alice Marie Irons, 14, Becomes Second Morrow Traffic Victim In 5 Days.

MOUNT GILEAD — Alice Marie Irons, 14, became Morrow county's second child-accident victime in five days yesterday when the bicycle she was riding on the Mt. Tabor road, three miles east of here, was struck by a car driven by Harley Heimlich, Mount Gilead.

On Monday Pauline Gerhart, 8, Bellivlee, was killed when she ran into the path of an approaching car on Route 42, north of Williamsport.

Alice was returning from a neighbor's where she had been helping the children. She died of a fractured skull while being taken to Mansfield General hospital.

A Mount Gilead high school sophomore, she was the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Irons, Congress township.

According to Sheriff Oscar George who investigated the tragedy, the Heimlich car was not being driven at an excessive rate of speed at the time of the accident.

Heimlich, who was returning from Fairfield and his first day on a new truck-driving job after a prolonged period of unemployment, said he saw the girl and slowed his car. He started to go around her on the left, but she swerved to the left at the same time.

Heimlich was forced off the road in trying to avoid the crash. As soon as he realized he had hit the girl's bicycle he leaped from his own car to run to her. His car kept going, wound up in a wheat field 81 feet from where he left it. He was not held.

Sheriff George said that less than an hour before the accident he and Deputy Jess Foust had drawn up a tentative warning to motorists, parents and youthful cyclists in response to a number of complaints from the public concerning bike perils.

Surviving Miss Irons are her parents, Mr. and Mrs. William Irons, Mt. Gilead; Mr. and Mrs. L. J. Wolford, Hanover, grandparents, and three brothers, Arthur, Allen and Alvin, all at home.

Funeral services will be held here Sunday at 2 p. m. with Rev. L. Eugene Rush of Mt. Gilead and Rev. Cook, Chesterville, officiating.

R.A.F. BLASTS POWER STATION

bomb blasts drifted back to England across the water and then large formations of British aircraft flew back toward their bases over the Kentish coast.

The air ministry said the German night raids on Britain were small but that a few bombs were dropped on west and southwest England and south Wales as well as sections of East Anglia. Damage and casualties were described as slight and one raider was shot down.

In addition to attacking northwestern Germany, British planes last night gave the occupied channel ports what many observers considered the heaviest attack of the war.

But it was admitted that for the first time in the present series of R. A. F. sweeps of the channel the British losses exceeded those of the Germans. An air ministry communique said 10 British planes were lost yesterday and last evening while only seven enemy planes were known to have been destroyed.

1,100 at Mystic Club Picnic With Hearty Appetites

The heat wave stopped the ball games scheduled as a part of the program for the 1,100 Mansfield Masons who gathered at South park yesterday for the annual Mystic club picnic, but it had no effect whatsoever on the appetites of the crowd.

Despite the sweltering weather members of the Mystic club consumed some 200 pounds of baked beans, 150 pounds of ham, 100 pounds of cheese, and washed it all down with 2,400 bottles of assorted soft drinks.

Other items, four bushels of potato salad, 110 loaves of bread, seven gallons of pickles, 150 bunches of onions and approximately 800 cups of coffee.

While it was too hot to play ball, club members enjoyed the get-together over cards and horseshoes, the remainder of the informal program.

The annual affair yesterday marked the continuation of a picnic series begun more than a quarter of a century ago. The Mystic club was organized approximatcly 35 years ago, according to A. F. Porter, secretary.

Directors of the club in charge of the picnic were Earl E. Bates, H. L. Dent, R. N. Campbell, D. A. McCullough, Carl A. Wolforth, W. H. Barr, Tolman Burns, W. W. Enlow and E. R. Jenkins.

THEATERS

Dramatic Spectacle.

Magnificently filmed in technicolor, "Blood and Sand," showing at the Ohio, pictures the rise of a simple peasant boy to one of the great matadors of Spain. Success turns his head and he deserts his wife for an alluring temptress. Tyrone Power plays the star of the arena and Linda Darnell is cast as his wife. Rita Hayworth enacts the "other woman." Rouben Mamoulian, director, moved his principal cast of 300 players to Mexico City to give authentic atmosphere to the production. The supporting players include Nazimova, John Carradine and Anthony Quinn.

Carnival Thriller.

Humphrey Bogart's new starring vehicle, "The Wagons Roll At Night," playing at the Madison, gives the screen's No. 1 player of killer-roles the part of a carnival owner attempting to keep his show out of the red. His cohorts are enacted by Sylvia Sidney in the role of a fortune teller, Eddie Albert, a lion tamer, and Joan Leslie, as Bogart's sister. "Devil Dogs of the Air," the companion picture, has James Cagney and Pat O'Brien as the same fighting and rollicking duo that made "Here Comes the Navy." Margaret Lindsay is the girl in the case.

PROMINENT SHELBY GIRL WEDS R. E. MOFFATT

Miss Viola Jane Skiles and Plymouth Man Exchange Nuptial Vows at Home of Bride's Parents, Mr. and Mrs. C. C. Skiles Friday.

IN AN ALL WHITE SETTING Miss Viola Jane Skiles, prominent young Shelby woman, and daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. C. Skiles, 37 Boulevard. became the bride of Robert E. Moffatt, son of Shelby Health Commissioner and Mrs. B. H. Moffatt of Huron Valley Farm, near Plymouth, Friday evening at 7:30 o'clock. The formal service was solemnized before an improvised altar in the Skiles home. The mantel was banked with a lovely arrangement of white flowers. Roses and lilies, their white outstanding against the greenery of palms and ferns, decorated the candle-lighted altar for the occasion.

Given in marriage by her brother, Jack Skiles of New York City, the bride wore a white batiste formal gown, fashioned with a square neckline, trimmed with an embroidered ruffle at the neck, sleeves and around the train. The fitted bodice was trimmed with a band of dainty embroidery and the skirt was made in full Colonial style. Her diminutive DeMedici bonnet of Chantilly lace had a finger tip illusion veil. She carried a Colonial bouquet of white roses, delphinium and baby breath.

Mrs. John Warden of Shelby played a program of nuptial music preceding the service. Her selections were "Liebestraum" by Liszt, "Canzone Amorosa," "Venetian Love Song" by Nevin, "O Promise Me," by De Koven, "To a Wild Rose," by MacDowell, "Liebe Dich" by Greig and the wedding marches.

Dr. Willard Hackenberg of Detroit, Mich., former pastor of the Shelby Lutheran church, officiated for the single ring service in the presence of relatives and friends. Miss Eleanor Bloomfield of Mansfield was the maid of honor, wearing a pink net over taffeta frock. The bodice and yoke of the dress was embroidered net and the skirt was made very full. A square neckline and tiny puff sleeves fashioned the top of the dress. She carried a Colonial bouquet of blue delphinium, pale pink roses and baby breath.

James Nunn of Detroit, Mich., served Mr. Moffatt as best man.

Immediately following the wedding the bridal party and guests motored to Mansfield where a reception was held at the Women's club. There, too, an all white setting was had. Baskets of white flowers and greenery decorated the rooms. The serving table was centered with a tiered cake.

Mr. and Mrs. Moffatt left later for a three-weeks trip to Lake Temagami, Ontario, Canada. For traveling the bride wore a light blue silk jersey frock with matching blue off-the-face hat, yellow coat and accessories.

Mrs. Moffatt was graduated this spring from the University of Michigan, where she was a member of the Alpha Phi sorority. She had also attended the Connecticut College for Women. "Pitfalls of Love"

(A Sequel to Marriage Meddlers)

By ADELE GARRISON

OLGA proved herself a true prophet. When the ten minutes of rest Dr. Wright had prescribed were over, and he gave my bruised throat another medication, he asked me to speak, and when I had obeyed him, he nodded his head with satisfaction.

"You evidently have great recuperative powers, Mrs. Graham," he said. "Another ten minutes of rest, and another treatment, and your voice will be virtually normal."

"Then there is no need of a specialist?" Philip Veritzen asked tentatively.

"I should say not," the physician answered, "but of course if you think—"

"I do not want one," I said.

"You need not become excited," Mr. Veritzen said a bit testily—"We are not going to call a specialist."

"Unless you strain your voice by speaking as you did just now," Dr. Wright said.

"Sorry," I mumbled, and Olga slipped her arm through mine.

"Come back and lie down again," she pleaded, and Doctor Wright nodded his approval.

Madge Improves Rapidly.

He kept his promise, and after his next medication I felt as if I were indeed myself again. He left me a gargle for the inside of my throat, a soothing lotion for the outside bruises, and an injunction to call him promptly if my condition did not continue to improve. Then he went away, and even captious Philip Veritzen voiced approval of his treatment.

"Very good job, I imagine," he said, "from the way your voice sounds. But your throat is still disfigured. What can you do about covering it?"

"As I said before, I will attend to that detail," said Olga, her voice and face serenely confident. "If you will excuse me for a little, I will go down to Mary's suite, get hold of her, and without alarming her tell her what is needed and send her up here. I know she must have everything that is requisite in her own wardrobe."

Philip started with her to the door.

"You will be all right, Madge?" he asked, but Olga swung round facing him with decision in her manner.

"She certainly must not be left alone after an experience such as hers," she said. "You must stay here until Mary comes back. Then, if you wish to come back to the party, I shall be very glad to see you. We will "carry on," as Mary says, until she brings Madge back with her; that is, if you feel equal to coming over, Madge?"

"Of course I do," I answered warmly, but Philip Veritzen spoke so hurriedly that my answer was smothered in the making.

"But that will mean my dear," he addressed his wife with exaggerated solicitude, "that you will be going through these corridors at this hour alone."

"My dear husband!" she apostrophized him. "I shall be perfectly safe in going through the hotel corridors. Au revoir!"

She made an airy, graceful gesture of her hand toward him as she went through the door, and he looked after her with the mixture of fatuous admiration and exasperation which he betrays when she so prettily—and thoroughly—flouts his authority.

But he made no comment to me, for which I silently thanked him. Instead he walked toward the door of the bedroom.

"With your permission," he said with the formality which always invests his utterances to a woman, "I will go through to the other suite and find out how they're getting along. I will leave the doors open so that I will be within call."

"Thank you," I said, noting with gratitude that every minute it was getting easier for me to use my throat.

But when he went out of the room, I put my head against the chair back and closed my eyes. I also put my hands over the chair arms and held them there tightly, "re-charging my will" for whatever the rest of the night might bring me.

Philip Reassuring.

He did not come back for several minutes, and I was thankful indeed for the interlude. When he did come, his face was non-committal, as always, but his words were reassuring.

"I am sorry to have stayed away so long," he said, "but that other suite was empty, and as I would not leave you here alone, it took some time for me to get in touch with Milner and find out what happened.

"I am happy to report to you that the gangster was taken down through the cellars and transferred to your father's car, without anyone being the wiser. They are now on the way to your father's hideaway, and Milner gave me a message for you from the man named Gus."

The Secret of the Marshbanks + + +

By Kathleen Norris

(Copyright, 1941)

CHAPTER XXVII

She would have escaped, but there was no escape. He came in, greeting Fran and old Mrs. Marshbanks and Gregory, catching Cherry's hand as he stood beside her, but with no other look or greeting, and spoke at once of Amy's elopement. He hoped it had not too much distressed her grandmother.

"I don't know any good of him!" Mrs. Marshbanks said of Count Gogo, visibly touched by Kelly's solicitude in spite of her stiff manner.

"At all events, Amy is a determined young lady and knows her own mind. She may mold him into just the husband she wants," Kelly said comfortingly. And then to Fran: "You telephoned that you wanted to see me about something?"

Cherry's eyes went to Fran's face and found there an expression that she could not define. It was a tragic expression, mingled with one of—well, what? Fear and warning and solicitude combined? A strange look, disquieting and significant. But significant of what?

"Could we talk for a few minutes, Kelly?" Fran asked, rising. "Something has happened," Cherry heard her say as they went away together, "and I don't know how serious it may be."

Cherry's own heart sick with apprehension, she went through the gloomy big halls up to her own room a few minutes later. It seemed to Cherry that life would never be right and happy again. She was trying to master her tears when May came in with the message that Mr. Coates would like to see her a moment.

Kelly looked at her a moment, then squared her gently about with his big hands and asked her why she had been crying.

"I've felt—so horrible!" Cherry faltered, fresh tears welling in her eyes. She could not face him.

"What about, Marchioness? Nerves? Is all this beginning to get you?"

"Oh, Kelly, I'm so wretched about those letters! I knew—of course I knew," Cherry faltered, "that you were fond of Fran; I knew that just as soon as I met her, or you! But it hurts me so—it hurts me so—when I was so happy thinking that you and I would be together—to have this happen now! To have the police get them and the newspapers; it spoils everything!"

"Why does it spoil everything?" he asked gravely, still holding her lightly with both hands behind her shoulders. "Look at me, Cherry. This doesn't spoil anything. Do you mean that you don't want to come to Sausalito now"

She smiled up at him through tears.

"Oh, Kelly, but it makes it all so horrid!" she said, even though hope was dawning in her voice.

"Cherry, you just said that you knew I'd cared—or that at one time some months ago, I thought I was crazy about Fran. I never asked her to come to Sausalito and run me; I never thought of her doing any such thing. I think I always knew that she wasn't in earnest, and I hadn't seen you very often when I knew that I wasn't. What's the trouble?"

"Didn't she tell you about the letters?"

"Of course she did. She took me up to her room to tell me. She stopped at the library and told Higgins—the assistant D. A.—he's here this morning—that I had arrived. I don't know why. Perhaps you can tell me why."

"You—you comfort me by just s-s-saying anything!" Cherry said, laughing with wet lashes. She seated herself in a big fireside chair, and Kelly came to sit on the broad arm, holding tight to her hand.

"Let's have it. What about the letters?"

"She had them, Kelly. And a day or so ago the police found them."

"So what?"

"So what?" she echoed dazedly, "Can't they use them, Kelly? Can't they make it seem that perhaps if you loved her . . . ?"

"Why," Kelly said, "what on earth do you suppose was in those letters, dear? Plans for murdering Jud Marshbanks?"

"You comfort me," Cherry whispered, her eyes shut. "You—you don't know how you rest me, Kelly!"

He twisted about a little so that he could get an arm around her.

"What was in them?" she asked faintly.

"Well, I suppose the usual thing. That I was—oh Lord—perhaps that I was happy in my new friendship for one of the most fascinating women I'd ever known," Kelly said half amused and half impatient. "And here was a book that I knew she would like, and thanks for a wonderful talk yesterday afternoon, and did she know what an inspiration a woman like herself—that sort of slush! The kind of thing she knew the moment she met me I would be writing her pretty soon, and the kind of thing I knew the moment I met her she'd like. Show-off stuff, about Dante and Beatrice, and Love in Diana's Lap."

"There must have been more than that because she was so frightened."

"I'll be damned if I know what scared her," he said, in a genuinely puzzled tone. "She was beside herself. 'Kelly,' she said, 'it isn't for my sake but yours! Your career is ruined!' And she wanted me to take her away. 'Take me away and marry me!' she said over and over again."

"And what did you say?" Cherry asked, paling.

"I said that I loved you."

Her eyes filled again. Cherry could not speak.

* * *

"Then she said that I didn't know what might happen," the man pursued, still in the tone of one completely bewildered, "and I asked her what on earth she was afraid of. She said, 'You don't know, you don't know how they sound! You've not seen them for months.' It was the darndest thing I ever knew.' But as for the press exploiting them and landing me in jail, why, it's just silly."

"She didn't really ask you to marry her?"

"Indeed she did, but she wasn't in earnest as far as caring for me goes. That was perfectly obvious. But what was she after? She said that the men downstairs would bag me as I went out if she didn't come down too; she went with me to the front door and said, 'Kiss me good-bye, Kelly,' with Higging standing right in the library door. I've not kissed Fran for months; I never kissed her at all except once or twice."

"And you really don't think there's anything dangerous in those letters?" Cherry asked on a long sigh.

"I know there isn't. What gets me is that she thinks there is."

"And now that you could marry her," Cherry mused, "you don't want to?"

"Cherry, it's as if it never had been. She was always playing, I think, and the moment I got onto that, it seemed to cool me off too."

"Remember the time that I thought she had been to Sausalito and the judge thought so, and she had given him to understand that I had been with her?"

"The night he was murdered, Cherry."

"Oh, so it was, so it was! She was silent a moment; "Amy wanting to marry Gogo, I telling him what Emma had told me, and Fran lying—for it was a lie, Kelly, a deliberate lie—about where she had been."

"And I was thinking of that too. Is there somebody else?"

"That certainly has occurred to the police. You can bet they're asking questions of her crowd down in Burlingame. It's clearing, Cherry. Get on your coat and rubbers and tie something over your head. We'll go for a walk."

"If I can keep my feet on the ground!" she said, adding in a longing tone, "Oh, Kelly, it'll be so good to get out of this house some day and into the free, open air and to forget everything that's gone on here!"

"Don't you think sometimes of the fact that if things had gone just a little differently you might be a rich woman, Marchioness?" he asked, as they walked along the wet sidewalks, leaning against the wind.

"No; I never thought of it, really. I wouldn't want it. I'll feel so rich as your wife, Kelly," Cherry said, "that it would just be a bother to me. What could I do with it? Furs and pearls—I don't know what women are like who buy pearls! To be over there . . ." She had stopped on a windy street corner, and now she gestured toward the northeast over leaden waters where the far hills were beaten under rain. "Just to be over there, alone with you," she continued; "there's no money in the world that could tempt me to give up a minute of it!"

"The Authority on Authorities"

MORE THAN YOU NEED

Ordinarily a squeeze play builds up into a trick taker some one card which was not good for a trick until the squeezed opponent made his disastrous discard. There are rare occasions, however, in which it builds more than one card into a winner on a single play. Sometimes it will leave you with more winning cards than there are tricks remaining to be taken, so you can choose which ones you wish to use.

	♠ A 10 5 ♥ Q 7 5 2 ♦ J 10 ♣ A Q 8 2
♠ 9 2 ♥ A J 10 9 ♦ K 7 2 ♣ J 7 6 4	N. W. E. S.	♠ 6 4 3 ♥ 8 6 3 ♦ 6 5 4 3 ♣ 10 9 5

Not liking to lead either side suit bid by the opponents, or from his own tenaced hearts, West chose the trump 9. Mrs. J. H. Nevitt, one of Toronto's finest players, won that with the K and immediately led the heart 4. Not daring to let that go by, West took it with his A and led back his heart J to the K.

Playing carefully and watching all discards, Mrs. Nevitt then ran all of the spades and followed with the club K, A and Q. Prior to the last club, the dummy contained the heart Q and 5. West guarding the latter with the 10-9, also the diamond J. The South hand contained all four original diamonds, West having discarded down to the guarded K. When the club Q came through, the diamond 8 being shed from South, West was in a terrible spot. If he tossed a heart, both of North's would be good, with the diamond A for the final trick.

West took the other choice, blanking the diamond K. Now Mrs. Nevitt had more than enough tricks in sight, the heart Q plus three diamonds, with only three tricks to go. She chose to take a trick with the heart Q and then led the diamond J, coming up with the A to drop the unguarded K and then scoring with the Q for the final trick.

Your Week-End Lesson.

With no information regarding the defenders' holdings in the suit, why should the declarer holding the A K 9 7 2 take the first trick of the suit if dummy has the Q 10 6 3 and have dummy take the first trick if it holds the Q-8-6-3?

Wolpert's Double In Eighth Wins Close One for Braves

Sport Podge by REX HESS

Mansfield sports fans apparently aren't interested in picking all-star teams.

Recently when the city softball commission attempted to select an all-star aggregation by popular vote for the playing of night games, just three replies were received by the sports department of The News-Journal.

Ballots for an all-star Ohio State league team to meet the first-half champion in a special game in the champs' home town July 7, have been in these sport pages for nearly a week.

And the votes turned in at the time this column was written add up to exactly 0.

This is all very puzzling to me, but then I am easily puzzled. Perhaps there is an answer somewhere, but it had better be good to make much sense to this confused commentator.

There certainly were enough softball players who wanted to play on that night team and who could have turned in selections in a much larger number than three.

And the Mansfield Braves have been consistently outdrawing other Ohio State league teams all season in their home yard. But the Mansfield fans are strangely silent in this matter of picking an Ohio State league star team, and in backing their favorites on the home club.

* * *

Don't tell me the fans ain't bright,
That they've forgotten how to write.

* * *

So whom would I pick, if I were picking? The pitchers present no great problem, Jim Stasaitis of Fremont, Eddie Evans of Lima, Pat Patterson of Mansfield, and Elmer Vasko of Tiffin. Assuming that Stasaitis will be hurling for a champion Fremont team, there's Griffore of Findlay to round out the staff.

On first there'd be Joltin' Johnny Cindric of Lima, the league's leading home run clouter, or Shank of Findlay who's just one circuit blow behind.

* * *

Stephenson of Findlay would get the call at second, both on his fielding and his .323 batting average, and Bobby Ankrum of Mansfield, best shortstop in the league in my book, couldn't be crowded out of that post. He's also the leading hitter among the shortstops.

I haven't seen any outstanding third baseman, so on hitting alone I'd have to give it to Hubbard of Lima who's smacking a neat .296

* * *

Right here I'll have to scratch my thatch, or Forget about an all-star catcher.

There are two receivers to be named, and how could you do better than pick Bill Campau of Tiffin, loop-leading hitter with .406, and George Ruley, Findlay's scrappy mittman?

And then to the outfield, and Mary. Mary, now the garden grows, with Stan Mazgay of Findlay, Vic Sander of Tiffin, Gene Kavanaugh of Lima, and Eddie Mutryn of Mansfield, just on the might of his home-run smite.

* * *

Best utility man in the league? Why Alex Clowson, chief of the Braves, of course. Alex has played every position on the team but shortstop and third base, and has done better than well at each and every post.

And for manager I'd have Gruff Grover Hartley, assuming still that Fremont wins the first-half rag and the all-stars couldn't use Chappie Geygan.

Just for the fun of it I'd like to see Geygan, Hartley and Clowson giving what for at the same time to those six umpires who are slated to work the game.

Indians Go Back In Lead

Milnar Hurls Tribe to Night Game Victory.

By JUDSON BAILEY
Associated Press Sports Writer.

THE CLEVELAND INDIANS and St. Louis Cardinals are out in front of the major leagues again after giving New York fans a day of enthusiastic planning for a "subway series."

The Indians' return home from a back-breaking eastern tour apparently was just the tonic the Tribe needed, because they came through last night with a 3-1 victory over the Chicago White Sox in exactly the kind of a game they play best.

* * *

Big Al Milnar pitched a steady seven-hitter before 42,000 fans and his mates peppered Bill Dietrich with timely hits, one of them a home run by Jeff Heath.

This was Cleveland's second straight triumph after losing four of five previous affairs and came on the heels of a 7-6 decision for the Philadelphia Athletics over the New York Yankees.

The Cleveland Indians called on Lefty Al Smith today to keep them in the slot. Smith, with four victories and four defeats, opposes Thornton Lee, another southpaw, with a five and five record.

In chalking up his seventh victory last night, Al Milnar gave the Indians a full game lead over the second place New York. It also evened the 1941 series with the White Sox at four games each.

* * *

Joe DiMaggio extended his sensational batting streak to 39 consecutive games with his 17th home run and a single, and also increased the record home run string of the Yankees as a club to 36 in 22 straight contests.

* * *

Joe needed to hit again today at Philadelphia to have a chance to tie and break the 19-year-old 41-game record of George Sisler Sunday at Washington, where the Yanks will play a double-header.

The Washington Senators whipped the Boston Red Sox, 5-3, last night with a three-run rally against Jack Wilson in the sixth inning.

Bob Harris pitched four-hit ball for the St. Louis Browns to shut out the Detroit Tigers, 9-0, and gave the American league tailenders their first triumph at Briggs Stadium in 15 starts dating back to April 16, 1940.

The Brooklyn Dodgers, who had ascended into a first-place tie in the National league Thursday while the St. Louis Cardinals were idle, had a day off themselves yesterday and the Red Birds gave them the same kind of treatment.

* * *

The Cardinals clipped the Cincinnati Reds, 5-3, in a night tilt and regained their half-game margin at the top of the standings. Paul Derringer and Max Lanier each pitched nine-hit ball but the St. Louis safeties included a home run by Terry Moore in the first inning and another by Don Padgett with one on in the eighth to decide the encounter.

* * *

The third-place New York Giants crushed the pitiful Phillies, 7-4, with two big innings and sent the cellar dwellers to their 16th defeat in 18 games.

Truett (Rip) Sewell hurled six-hit ball for the Pittsburgh Pirates at Chicago, but had a narrow escape as the Pirates went to the ninth inning before getting him the margin of a 4-2 victory.

Moose Club Sinks Demolay 20-11

The Moose softball club last night sank the DeMolay's team 20-11 in a club league tilt.

Brown, the winning pitcher, and McKee sparked the Moose attack connecting with four and three hits. Brown gave up eight hits as he fanned eight DeMolays.

Cochran of the Moose and Colbow of the DeMolays connected for homers in the slugfest. Herpich led the DeMolay attack with two bingles.

TORRID TEMPERATURES STOP CLEVELAND FANS

CLEVELAND —(INS)— Cleveland stadium attendants and ushers today reported they treated a "record number" of heat prostration cases last night as fans sweltered in torrid temperatures during the Indian-White Sox game. Attendants in the first aid room said they treated "at least 12" cases.

Semi-Finals Go Overtime

Both College Golf Tilts Decided In Extra Holes.

By FRITZ HOWELL

COLUMBUS—(AP)—Two youths battled over the 36-hole route today in the finals of the 44th National Intercollegiate Golf championship, one attempting to add the title to his Pacific Coast intercollegiate crown, the other trying to disprove that old adage that the medalist never wins.

* * *

The survivors of yesterday's semi-finals matches—both extra-hole affairs for the first time in a major tournament's history were Ray Brownell, six-foot three-inch Stanford sophomore, and Earl Stewart, 150-pound junior redhead from Louisiana state, who copped the qualifying medal with 142, two under even figures.

* * *

Brownell was six over par in the semi-finals as he traveled 40 holes before ousting Danny Carmichael, Columbus youth who graduated a few days ago from Princeton, while Stewart was six over par for the 38 holes he needed to eliminate Otto Greiner, Baltimore universiyt's ace.

The Stanford star closed out his match with a seven-foot birdie putt on the 40th hole, while Stewart got in as Greiner missed a camparatively short putt to keep the match alive on the 38th.

A comparison of the cards of the finalists showed that, had they been opponents yesterday, they too would have been all square at the end of the regulation 36 holes, so a hot finals competition was in prospect for today.

Tournament officials declared that never before, to their knowledge, had two semi-finals matches gone into extra holes.

Netters Finish First Round

Moore and Spear Reach Tourney Semi-Finals.

Bob Spear and Bob Moore yesterday stroked their way into the semi-finals of the Wood Lawn Tennis club championship tournament and will tangle for the shot at the title.

First round matches saw W. E. Slabaugh, defeating Dick Arnold 6-1, 6-0, R. O. Enos winning from Al Stonebrook by the same scores, A F. Zoll moving up by default by R. Meese, L. B. Bourns taking Bob Larson 7-5, 6-2, Moore taking a default from O. Meese, Bob Ellison defeating B. N. Keene 6-3, 6-2, F. M. Gadfield eliminating Bill Oberlin 6-3, 6-2, and Spear trouncing Gene Rudolph 6-1, 6-0.

In the second round Moore edged Ellison 6-2, 7-5, and Spear defeated Gadfield in love sets.

* * *

Two doubles have been played, with Bourns and Slabaugh eliminating Gadfield and Stonebrook 8-6, 6-1, and Enos and Spear defeating Larson and Oberlin 6-1, 6-0. Moore and Ellison took a default from Arnold and Zoll, and Rudolph and Keene drew a first-round bye.

On Sunday, July 13, the Wood Lawn club team will go to Akron for a match with the University Club.

Stars Perform At 400 Meters

Defending Champ Heads Stellar Philly Field.

PHILADELPHIA —(AP)— A red-hot race at 400 meters threatened today to overshadow more highly-touted events in the national A. A. U. championships as the two-day track and field carnival got under way on Franklin field.

* * *

Despite forecasts of record-breaking performances in the pole vault and high jump, the experts looked for the 400 to furnish the sensation of the 53rd annual meet.

Coach Charley Hunter of the San Francisco Olympic club, winner of the team title for the last two years and favored a third time, called the 400-meter field the best-matched he's ever seen.

It includes defending Champion Grover Klemmer of the Olympic club, Hubert Kerns of the Southern California A. A. and Harold Bogrow of New York university, who ran one-two ahead of Klemmer in the 440-yard race in the national collegiates last week.

Hunter figures his 16-man team, with defending champions in seven events, will win its third successive title.

"The team that can pile up a lot of firsts is the one that will cop here," said Hunter, "and our boys should do that."

Cornelius Warmerdam and Les Steers, in the pole vault and high jump, look like sure bets for Olympic club victors. Harold Davis, defending champion in the sprints; Tom Montgomery, six feet eight and 270 pounds, in the weights; Boyd Brown in the javelin; Phil Fox in the discus, and Klemmer are Hunter's other hopefuls for firsts.

Perhaps the first porpoise ever to be lassoed, and one of the very few ever to be captured alive, was the one taken in Bermuda, a few feet off Vogal Beach. Two commercial fishermen did the lassoing and the porpoise was put in a pool at the government aquarium. The weight of the big sea mammal is 650 pounds and its length is 5 feet.

Mansfield Ekes Out Victory Over Birds

Fremont, Edged by Findlay, Sees Lead Trimmed To 1½ Games

FREDDY WOLPERT'S line-drive double against the left field wall in the eighth inning drove Eddie Mutryn and Graf Moore with the tying and winning runs in a 4 to 3 victory for the Mansfield Braves over the Fostoria Red Birds before a ladies' night crowd at the Fairground last night.

It was a much needed victory as Findlay defeated Fremont 4 to 3 to reduce the Green Sox Ohio State league lead over Tiffin to 1½ games and over Mansfield to 3½, while Findlay remained just one game behind the Braves. Tiffin blanked Lima 11 to 0.

* * *

It was the fastest game of the season, only one hour and 44 minutes, with only one argument slowing up the procedure as the umpires escaped with few close ones to wave the thumb on.

* * *

The one dispute, and it didn't last long, came in the ninth when Pat Patterson breezed one down the middle for what looked like a third strike on Catcher Nehring of the Birds, only to hear it called a ball. And then, after the brawl was over, he walked Nehring, but managed to retire the side without damage.

Mansfield's other two runs also were driven in on a double, a mighty clout to the left field corner by Dick Morse in the fifth that plated Patterson and Ankrum.

BRAVES AT HOME
Sunday—Findlay (2 games).

Fostoria chalked up two runs in the second on Ankrum's bad throw after fielding Pruett's hopper, which was followed by a single by Manager Len Ellison, and a double to the right-center field fence by Ross.

* * *

Ross led off with another double to center in the seventh, a short fly on which Ed Chatlain tried for a diving catch and missed. Streng laid down a sacrifice, Nehring walked, and Dusseau squeezed Ross home with a bunt down the first base line to give the Birds a 3 to 2 lead.

* * *

Manager Alex Clowson, who completes his three-day suspension tonight, indicated he would retain Chatlain until Bob TeStruth is ready to return to duty at second base, leaving Moore free for outfield chores. Wolpert, who has been playing every game, either in left field or on the mound, needs rest if he's to continue his winning ways on the hill, and Chatlain should fit in well in the garden until the team becomes reorganized.

TeStruth was at the park last night but not in uniform. His injured leg won't let him do any running yet.

* * *

Chatlain looked good in center last night, gathering in six flies, several on long runs, and at the plate he smacked three drives on the nose, but two of them went straight to the left fielder, and the other right at shortstop.

* * *

The Braves play at Fostoria tonight, and return home tomorrow for a double-header at 1:30 with Findlay. Fostoria and Findlay are playing an afternoon game at Fostoria today.

PAM—Hysterical! By A. W. Brewerton

I WAS ON PARK STREET JUST TWO BLOCKS FROM THE BANK, WHEN I HAD TO PASS A CROWD ATTRACTED BY SOMETHING IN A SHOPWINDOW---
6-28
-- AS I WAS WORKING MY WAY THROUGH THE CROWD, SOMEONE BUMPED VIOLENTLY AGAINST ME, AND AT THE SAME TIME, ON THE OTHER SIDE, I FELT A SUDDEN JERK OF MY HAND - AND MY BAG WAS GONE!
--- I HAD BEEN HOLDING IT TIGHTLY, BUT IT HAD BEEN JERKED AWAY! I SCREAMED, THOUGHT I SAW A MAN PUSHING THROUGH THE CROWD, AND TRIED TO FOLLOW, BUT THERE WAS -----
EXTREMELY NERVOUS, THE UNHAPPY GIRL GREW ALMOST HYSTERICAL AS SHE RECOUNTED HER UNFORTUNATE EXPERIENCE
---THERE WAS SO MUCH CONFUSION AND EXCITEMENT - PEOPLE SHOUTING I'D BEEN "ROBBED - I LOST SIGHT OF THE MAN! - THEN A POLICEMAN APPEARED--

She likes to swim, skate and play tennis. Her goal—a good job for a while, then marriage.

STOCK MARKET TRAIL UNEVEN IN EARLY HOURS

Automotive Issues Faced With Announcement of Bigger Cut In Output.

NEW YORK—The stock market trail was slightly uneven in today's early proceedings.

At a sluggish opening gainers of fractions included General Motors and U. S. Steel. Among losers of small amounts were Anaconda, Goodrich, U. S. Rubber and Sears Roebuck.

Automotive stocks were confronted with the announcement of John D. Biggers, OPM production director, that defense requirements would necessitate a greater cut in output of passenger cars and trucks than the 20 per cent originally scheduled for the 1942 model season.

Market consideration also was given recommendations of defense authorities that eight new aluminum plants be constructed to turn out an additional 600,000,000 pounds of the metal anually.

Two truck loads of gambling equipment and prizes were seized in the raid which took place while 5,000 patrons thronged the carnival grounds.

Demonstrations End Y. W. C. A. Day Camp Festivities

Demonstrations of all activities comprising the Y.W.C.A. day camp program the past three weeks were staged yesterday by approximately 100 girls as a climax to the camp season held in city parks.

Swimming events were held at North Lake park and the sports demonstrations in volley ball, softball, badminton and archery took place at Middle park.

Groups were divided according to age for the various events, the 10 to 12-year-old campers swimming first and giving their sports demonstrations afterward, and the 13 to 18-year old group reversing this procedure.

At noon the campers united for a picnic lunch at Midlle park. Demonstrations for the entire group were resumed in the afternoon by the First Aid, outdoor cooking, and Bible and dramatics classes.

Starting with an enrollment of 140, the day camp has averaged a daily attendance of 70, according to Miss Norma Sheer, camp director.

This figure compares favorably with other years since the camp was organized to give girls a three weeks' camping program at the small cost of 25 cents.

G-MAN AND THE "LADY"

AS A MEMBER OF THE SECRET POLICE IN THIS COUNTRY, YOU ARE REQUIRED TO OBEY INSTRUCTIONS FROM YOUR SUPERIORS! THESE ARE FOR YOU TO BE ON A EUROPE-BOUND PLANE THIS MOMENT!
COOL OFF, QUISS! I MISSED THE PLANE — SIMPLE? SEEMS THE LEADER WAS EVEN ONCE ACCUSED OF MISSING A BOAT!
HOLD YOUR FOOLISH TONGUE, "LADY"!
HUMOR IS A NOTORIOUS DEMOCRATIC WEAKNESS! OUR TURN TO LAUGH COMES AFTER VICTORY!
I CAN HARDLY WAIT!
PATIENCE HAS BEEN OUR WATCHWORD THESE MANY YEARS! YOU WOULD DO WELL TO — HM-M! WHAT HAVE WE HERE? A BURNING CIGARETTE! DO YOU SMOKE TWO AT ONCE — AND OF DIFFERENT BRANDS?
OH-OH!
CURIOUS, "LADY", THAT I SHOULD FIND ONE CIGARETTE BURNING IN YOUR ASH TRAY — AND ANOTHER IN YOUR HAND — BUT ANOTHER BRAND!
BIG BRAIN DISCOVERS CLUE! SO WHAT, QUISS?
I LIT IT AND FORGOT ABOUT IT.. EVER HEAR OF A HOST HAVING SEVERAL BRANDS OF CIGARETTES IN HIS HOME? PERHAPS YOUR GUESTS MUST SMOKE YOUR BRAND!
SILENCE!
IT IS QUITE CLEAR THAT YOU WERE NOT ALONE! WHERE IS HE?
SAY, WHAT IS THIS? DO YOU THINK I'M PLAYING PEEK-A-BOO?
FLIPPANCY IS DECEIT'S WEAPON! YOU SAY YOU ARE ALONE — IN THAT CASE, YOU WILL NOT OBJECT TO MY GLANCING IN YOUR CLOSET?
OPEN THAT CLOSET! WE SHALL SEE WHOM YOU ARE HIDING — BUT PERHAPS I SHOULD SHOOT YOU FIRST!
I TELL YOU THERE'S NO ONE IN THERE!
SAY, WHAT'S COOKING HERE? OH, I GET IT — TRYING TO FRAME ME, EH?
SO! WHO ARE YOU? AND WHAT ARE YOU DOING HERE?
SURE, I'LL TELL YOU! I'M THE SAP WHO'S BEEN MAKING LOVE TO THIS DOUBLE-CROSSING DAME! OKAY, I'M HOOKED — WHAT DOES IT COST TO KEEP MY NAME OUT OF THE PAPERS?
GET OUT! I DON'T WANT YOUR MONEY, YOU BOOB — I WAS GETTING BORED WITH YOU, ANYWAY!
NICE TEAM-WORK, "LADY". HOPE THIS SQUARES YOU WITH KRAUT-FACE! BUT I'LL BE SEEING YOU!
I CANNOT MAKE UP MY MIND!
ABOUT WHAT, QUISS? SPEAK UP — I CAN TAKE IT!
ABOUT WHETHER THE MAN HIDING IN YOUR APARTMENT LAST NIGHT REPRESENTED A ROMANTIC EPISODE — OR AN ENEMY TO WHOM YOU WERE IMPARTING INFORMATION!
I TOLD YOU HE WAS AN ADMIRER!
WHY DO YOU KEEP HARPING ON THE SUBJECT? YOU'RE PUTTING ME ON THE PLANE TO EUROPE. THERE'S ONE CHANCE IN A MILLION OF MY EVER SEEING THE PALOOKA AGAIN!
QUITE SO —
YOU DID COMMENDABLE WORK IN CONNECTION WITH THE RETURN OF THE MAN, "HILARY", TO HEADQUARTERS.. I INTEND THAT NOTHING SHALL IMPEDE YOUR BRINGING THIS TO A SUCCESSFUL CONCLUSION!
AND THAT MEANS YOU'RE GOING TO HAVE ME WATCHED?
SO I AM TO BE WATCHED BY FELLOW SPIES TILL I REACH GENERAL HEADQUARTERS ABROAD — IS THAT THE SET-UP, QUISS?
YES!
I NO LONGER TRUST YOU AS IMPLICITLY AS BEFORE! MY OWN JUDGMENT TELLS ME TO END ALL DANGER OF POSSIBLE BETRAYAL BY ELIMINATING YOU —
BUT YOU'RE AFRAID I MIGHT SCREAM?
IT WOULD BE A PITY TO LOSE ONE SO BEAUTIFUL AND TALENTED! NEVERTHELESS, SHOULD YOU MAKE A SINGLE MISSTEP, YOUR WATCHERS WILL ACT!
AND, OF COURSE, THESE "WATCHERS" WILL REMAIN UNKNOWN TO ME?
NATURALLY! IT WILL INCREASE YOUR CAUTION!
TILL WE MEET AGAIN, "LADY"!
HAVEN'T SEEN X-9 WONDER IF HE'S TRAILING ME
TRANS-O
WE MUST KNOW WE'VE GOT "HILARY" SOMEWHERE IN EUROPE IF HE'S NOT ABOARD NOW, HE MUST HAVE GIVEN UP THE CHASE
I'M SORRY, BUT THE STEWARD HAS SHOWN YOU TO THE WRONG SEAT. YOUR PLACE IS FORWARD WILL YOU COME WITH ME, PLEASE?
WELL — JUST AS YOU SAY
I BEG YOUR PARDON, MA'AM!
WH — ? YOU?

TOOTS AND CASPER

I'VE SURE GOT PLENTY OF RELATIVES, TOOTS! DROVES OF THEM, INCLUDING A VERY RICH AUNT! THAT'S WHERE MY SCHEME COMES IN!
Copr. 1941, King Features Syndicate, Inc., World rights reserved.
ONCE SHE CALLED US ALL TOGETHER AND SAID SHE'D ULTIMATELY GIVE ALL HER WEALTH TO WHICHEVER ONE OF US WHO PROSPERED THE MOST IN LIFE.
SHE'LL ARRIVE TODAY AND I WANT HER TO THINK I'M THE RICHEST OF THE CLAN! THAT'S WHY I'M GONNA HAVE COL. HOOFER AND DANNY POSE AS MY BUTLER AND CHAUFFEUR AND I WANT YOU TO WEAR MY BOSS'S JEWELS
TOOTS IS RELUCTANT, BUT NOTHING VENTURED, NOTHING GAINED! HERE'S A WIRE FROM AUNTY! SHE'LL BE HERE IN AN HOUR.
6-23
CASPER'S SCHEME SOUNDS GOOD, BUT HOW WILL IT WORK OUT ? ?
JIMMY MURPHY
MY AUNT'S ARRIVING IN AN HOUR, COLONEL HOOFER! COME ON UP AND POSE AS MY BUTLER.
DANNY, TONIGHT IS THE BIG NIGHT---- COME UP TO THE HOUSE AND PRETEND YOURE MY CHAUFFEUR.
Copr. 1941, King Features Syndicate, Inc., World rights reserved.
QUICK, TOOTS! HERE'S MY BOSS'S JEWELRY! SLIP IT ON, WHILE AUNTY IS HERE, SO SHE'LL THINK I'M A RICH GUY.
I DON'T LIKE TO DO THAT, CASPER! IT'S NOT FAIR.
SHE'S GONNA GIVE AWAY HER FORTUNE TO HER MOST PROSPEROUS RELATIVE, AND I'M THE GUY WHO'LL LAND IT! GEE, LOOK AT THE BIG LIMOUSINE---YES, HERE SHE IS--- AUNTY HAS ARRIVED!
6-24
JIMMY MURPHY
CASPER, IT'S BEEN TWENTY YEARS SINCE I LAST SAW YOU.
WELCOME TO THE CASPER HOUSEHOLD, AUNTY.
Copr. 1941, King Features Syndicate, Inc., World rights reserved.
AUNTY, HERE'S TOOTS
I CAN ONLY STAY A FEW MINUTES -- MY STARS, TOOTS, YOU SURELY HAVE PLENTY OF JEWELRY ON YOU.
ANY FURTHER ORDERS, SIR?
YOU MAY HAVE THE REST OF THE EVENING OFF! MY AUNT HAS HER OWN CAR AND DRIVER
6-25
JIMMY MURPHY
DID YOU RING, SIR ?
NO, AND I DON'T WISH TO BE DISTURBED TONIGHT, UNLESS THE MAYOR PHONES, AND I'LL TALK TO HIM.
FAKING THAT I'VE A BUTLER AND A CHAUFFEUR, AND WITH TOOTS LOADED DOWN WITH BORROWED JEWELS---BOY! MY RICH AUNT MUST THINK I'M A MILLIONAIRE.
CASPER, WHEN YOU WERE A CHILD I CALLED ALL OF MY MANY RELATIVES TOGETHER, AND TOLD THEM SOMETHING I'D DO YEARS LATER---
YES, AUNTY, I REMEMBER IT WELL.
Copr. 1941, King Features Syndicate, Inc., World rights reserved.
YOU SAID YOU'D EVENTUALLY GIVE THE BULK OF YOUR WEALTH TO WHICHEVER ONE OF US WHO PROSPERED THE MOST IN LIFE.
YOU HAVE A GOOD MEMORY! THOSE WERE MY EXACT WORDS, CASPER.
I CAN'T HEAR WHAT AUNTY IS SAYING NOW, BUT JUDGING FROM THE WAY CASPER'S JAW JUST DROPPED, SOMETHING HAS GONE HAY-WIRE.
JIMMY MURPHY
6-26
CONTINUED TOMORROW.
YES, CASPER, I ONCE SAID I'D SOME DAY GIVE MY FORTUNE TO WHICHEVER RELATIVE OF MINE WHO PROSPERED THE MOST, BUT-
BUT WHAT ?
I'VE CHANGED MY MIND! I CAN DO MORE GOOD BY DIVIDING MY WEALTH UP AMONG MY POOREST RELATIONS WHO NOW NEED MONEY THE MOST.
Copr. 1941, King Features Syndicate, Inc., World rights reserved.
YOU DON'T NEED MY MONEY...YOU SEEM TO HAVE PLENTY OF YOUR OWN.
HOLD ON, AUNTY. I'M NOT RICH! I WAS ONLY KIDDIN' YOU! I'M AS POOR AS A CHURCH MOUSE.
CASPER, YOU'RE SELFISH! WITH ALL YOUR MONEY YOU'D TRY TO HOODWINK ME INTO GIVING YOU WHAT LITTLE I HAVE.
CASPER, IT SERVES YOU RIGHT.
JIMMY MURPHY
6-27
CASPER, HOW'D YOU MAKE OUT BY TRYING TO KID YOUR RICH AUNT THAT YOU'RE WEALTHY?
I DIDN'T GAIN A DOGGONE THING, BOYS.
I JUST PUT BACK MY BOSS'S JEWELRY IN HIS SAFE, SO THAT'S THAT! MY LITTLE SCHEME TURNED OUT TO BE A GREAT, BIG FLOP.
Copr. 1941, King Features Syndicate, Inc., World rights reserved.
CASPER, I HOPE YOU'VE LEARNED YOU CAN'T GET SOMETHING FOR NOTHING....THERE ARE NO SHORT CUTS TO RICHES.
TOOTS, YOU CAN'T BLAME A GUY FOR TRYING.
IT WAS WORK, TRYING TO PRETEND I'M SOMETHING I'M NOT! IF I'D ONLY BEEN MYSELF IT WOULD HAVE BEEN EASY, AND I'D HAVE WON OUT. IT'S SO EASY TO DO WRONG, AND SO HARD TO DO RIGHT. WHEN I GET NEXT TO MYSELF I'LL GET SOMEPLACE! THAT'S ONE LESSON YOU LEARN IN THE SCHOOL OF UPS AND DOWNS.
JIMMY MURPHY
6-28.

It Will Be In The Sunday Edition of News-Journal
